Student Project Specialist

WOW! Factor Desserts, based in Sherwood Park, Alberta, is a family-run business that is considered Canada's leader in the manufacturing and distribution of high-end, frozen desserts. With North American distribution, WOW! supplies to restaurants, hotels, banquet halls, cruise ships, casinos, healthcare institutions, and airlines

Wow! Factor Desserts has an exciting opportunity for a student project specialist to help us think outside the box and improve our current packaging!

This 12-week summer student position will entail conducting an in-depth review of our existing packaging while collaborating with our current partners to develop a proposal on how we can better meet customer needs and expectations while maintaining our strict quality and safety standards. Along with the support of operations, continuous improvement and quality assurance team members, the study project specialist will lead this project from beginning to end.

This ideal candidate for this role would be:

- A university student enrolled in a Food Science degree or similar.
- Possess a strong attention to detail.
- Able manage time efficiently.
- Able to work independently while consulting relevant stakeholders as needed.
- Imaginative, creative, and inventive. Someone who isn't afraid to try something new or ask questions.

As this is a unique opportunity, we are not looking for relevant experience but rather the right candidate with the right attitude to take this opportunity and gain hands on experience working in a manufacturing environment.

The rate of pay will be $21/hour working Monday-Friday from 8am-4:30pm.

If interested, please submit your resume to Julie Montpetit at jmontpetit@wowfactordesserts.com.
